Ben, Global Relocations

Ben is the managing director of Global Relocations, an international moving and relocations company. Ben frequently introduces his clients to World First.

Tell us a bit about your business and why there is a need for currency transfers?

We are international removal experts specialising in overseas relocations to and from the UK to virtually every country around the world. With our network of agents in every country it is imperative to be able to make timely payments and ensure a seamless delivery each and every move.

How long have you used World First for?

As a business and personally, I believe that we have used World First for approximately three years! I must admit I was sceptical at first whether my initial transaction would make it to its intended recipient but I am glad to say that it did and having had all of those years of working together, I am confident when talking to our clients about the process of working with World First.

What are the benefits of recommending your clients to World First?

Simplicity, transparency and reliability. Once the account is setup, it is so easy to use the system to make new payments. The whole process is transparent in that you know how much the transaction will cost and you also know what sum of money your pounds will convert to. In this day and age clients always appreciate a tried and tested method and so our recommendation is well received and used by many.

How do you as a business benefit?

It has brought overseas payments into the 21st Century! We used to have to pop into our local branch to fill in forms and pay handsomely for the transaction. Now we can make the payment without moving from our office desk and have the peace of mind that the money will arrive without deductions of commission. Agents love it as well as they are notified by email when our payment is on its way so they do not just take our word for it.

What do you like most about World First?

The concept as it is so simple and very well executed. In addition, the people and energy in their office also make for a fantastic partnership as they are passionate about helping people get the most from their money.
